

Course Number

HST-124-01

Course Description

This course will provide an overview of public history, defined as the presentation of history to a general public audience. Students will learn the theory, methods, and practice of public history in its various dimensions, including museums, monuments, historic sites, and films; they will explore the controversies that emerge in public history settings, including the battle over the Enola Gay, the Holocaust Museum, and commemorations of September 11th; and they will engage in a public history project in the Schenectady area.

Academic Term

22/FA

Instructor

Aslakson, Kenneth

Location & Meeting Time

Lippman-016+ T/TH 09:00AM-10:45AM LEC

Credits

1.00

Capacity

35

Total Students

35

Additional Information

<http://www.union.edu/History>

Common Curriculum

SOCS

Interdisciplinary Programs

American Studies

Academic Department

History

Field Of Study

History (HST)