

Course Number

HST-131-01

Course Description

The purpose of this course is to help you better understand both the role of race and slavery in early American history and the contributions of African-Americans to society and culture in America before 1877. The course will examine the lives of black Americans, enslaved and free, from the arrival of the first Africans in the New World through Reconstruction. It will also address more abstract ideas about cultural and racial differences. Throughout this course, you will be asked to consider the question which came first, racism or slavery?

Academic Term

21/FA

Instructor

Aslakson, Kenneth

Location & Meeting Time

Karp Hall-001+ M/W/F 09:15AM-10:20AM LEC

Credits

1.00

Capacity

35

Total Students

17

Additional Information

<http://www.union.edu/History>

Common Curriculum

LCC Languages & Cultures

SOCS Social Science

Interdisciplinary Programs

Africana Studies

American Studies

Academic Department

History

Field Of Study

History (HST)