

Course Number

HST-175-01

Course Description

What does a good life look like? What does it mean to 'live well' as a person, as a community, or as a nation? Can societies live well by exploiting nonrenewable resources, and is it possible to live well without them? Can social movements and popular groups wield real political power without being corrupted by the system? This class is an introduction to Latin American experiments in environmental and social change across the 20th and 21st centuries. Students will complete a final research project that applies lessons from Latin America to their own lives.

Academic Term

22/SP

Instructor

McGrath, Elena

Location & Meeting Time

Karp Hall-008+ M/W/F 11:45AM-12:50PM LEC

Credits

1.00

Capacity

35

Total Students

26

Additional Information

<http://www.union.edu/History>

Common Curriculum

LCC Languages & Cultures

SOCS Social Science

Interdisciplinary Programs

Latin American Studies

Academic Department

History

Field Of Study

History (HST)