

Course Number

CLS-188-01

Course Description

We will study the origins, history, theory, and practice of Ancient Greek and Roman astronomy, including influences from Egypt and Babylon, mythological and philosophical accounts of celestial phenomena, the classical geocentric model of the universe, and early observational and quantitative methods. Students will learn how ancient people measured time, made calendars, and organized their public world around the idea of an orderly and harmonious cosmos.

Academic Term

22/SP

Instructor

Winters, Nick

Location & Meeting Time

Karp Hall-008+ M/W/F 09:15AM-10:20AM LEC

Credits

1.00

Capacity

24

Total Students

26

Additional Information

<http://www.union.edu/Classics>

Common Curriculum

HUM Arts & Humanities

Academic Department

Classics

Field Of Study

Classics (CLS)